MHC 329: Medical Ethics Behind Bars (Baruch Equivalent: PHI 3990H)
Instructors: Logan McBride, Elizabeth Reis
Time: Thursdays, 12:00 PM – 2:40 PM
Modality: Hybrid Synchronous
Engage with a range of sources, including first person accounts, to explore ethical issues regarding medical care that those living behind bars have faced, and the relationship between mass incarceration and public health.

MHC 346: Rebel Women: Spanish-Speaking Writers and Artists (Baruch Equivalent: CMP 4000H)
Instructor: Carmen Boullosa
Tuesdays, 3:00 PM – 5:40 PM
Modality: In Person
An extraordinary array of powerful and vocal women, who come from wildly different times, places, backgrounds, and cultures. Taught by world-renowned novelist, poet, and author Carmen Boullosa. All readings will be in English translation.

MHC 347: Ecosystems of Democracy (Baruch Equivalent: POL 7050H)
Instructor: Ted Widmer
Wednesdays, 10:00 AM – 12:40 PM
Modality: Hybrid Synchronous
“Ecosystems of Democracy" will offer a framework for students to think about all the ways in which we experience democracy on a daily basis.

MHC 373: “Can You Believe This?” A Look at Impact Media (Baruch Equivalent: COM 3059H)
Instructor: Robert Small
Time: Thursdays, 4:00 PM – 6:40 PM
Modality: Hybrid Synchronous
Our class will explore and deconstruct today’s media landscape and its impact on...everything!

MHC 382: The Roosevelts’ New York (Baruch Equivalent: Pending - contact Honors Program)
Instructor: Ted Widmer
Thursdays, 10:00 AM – 12:40 PM
Modality: Hybrid Synchronous
The class will enjoy a partnership with the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library and Museum, in Hyde Park, New York.

MHC 387: Survey of Central Asian Film and Literature (Baruch Equivalent: AAS 3085H)
Instructor: Zohra Saed
Wednesdays, 12:20 PM – 3:00 PM
Modality: Hybrid Synchronous
This course will introduce students to the complexity and richness of Central Asian and Central Asian Diaspora Film and Literature and examine the cultural, linguistic, and religious history of Central Asian peoples, including the Azeri, Kazak, Kyrgyz, Tatar, Uyghur, Uzbek, Tajik, Turkman, and Afghan.

To enroll, student must file for an epermit via CUNYFirst.

More detailed information for each course is available by following their title link.