

Baruch COLLEGE

Why have a high school newspaper?

Students who work on their school newspaper or new site:

- ❖ have a higher GPAs in English
- ❖ get better grades as college freshman
- ❖ are more likely to vote as adults
- ❖ are more tolerant of diversity
- ❖ have a stronger sense of school community and pride

How to start?

The NYC High School Journalism Collaborative at Baruch College can help your school start a print or online newspaper program with resources, mentoring, professional development, workshops, award competition and a yearly conference for students and advisers. Best part: it's free.

To find out more, contact Director Katina Paron at Katina.paron@baruch.cuny.edu or 718-755-6225.

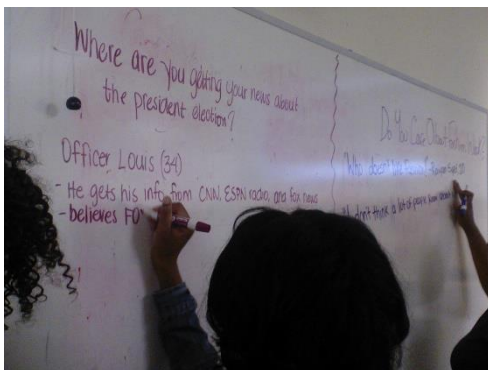

Upcoming events

➤ Tues. Sept. 30: Deadline for The Newsies!, a free journalism competition for NYC high schools. More info:

<http://bit.ly/2014NewsiesGuidelines>

➤ Fri. Nov. 7: 11th NYC High School Journalism Conference at Baruch College. Free. Registration required. More info at

<http://blogs.baruch.cuny.edu/hsjournalism/>

Our partners:

New York City Scholastic Press Association

<http://www.nychsj.com>

